make a mystery of the affair. He said that Mulcher was the regular elevator man, but other employees said that Mulcher was a porter and was not familiar with the car.

Mulcher was on the tenth story and was sent to the sixth to get a package, which he was to carry to the ground floor. He went down alone in the elevator car. From the seventh floor to the fourth the rooms are used for storage. That is why nobody knew anything of Mulcher's fate until a couple of hours later an office boy, after ringing for the elevator, climbed up through the deserted floors.

The boy found the elevator stuck at the fifth floor. The upper crossplece of the ceiling of the car rested squarely on Mulcher's neck, which was pressed against the floor. He had been choked to death
